POCKET TALES
QUIZ CREATION OVERVIEW

Thanks for helping Pocket Tales create quizzes for our online social reading game! We've got a lot of kids playing on our website requesting quizzes every day so thank you for helping to feed their voracious appetite for reading.

Below, you'll find: 1) a list of books to choose from, 2) a few things to keep in mind when creating a quiz, 3) where to go to upload your quizzes to Pocket Tales, and 4) how we will pay you.

CHOOSING BOOKS

Visit http://ptal.es/pt-books to view the list of books we are targeting. Once you've chosen a couple books to create quizzes for, please:

- Put your name under the column with the heading "Quiz Creator" so another person doesn't create a quiz for that book.
- The books are color coded by priority. When deciding on which books to work on first, please first focus on the highest priority books as those are books requested by Pocket Tales users.
- If for some reason you can't create a quiz for a certain book, please remove your name from that book so another person can work on it.

CREATING QUIZZES

When creating quizzes, please keep these things in mind:

- The purpose of the quizzes is to prove a child has read a book. We intend for them to be easy for the child to pass, and thus, should be quick and easy for you to create.
- Quizzes should contain four questions with four multiple choice answers.
  - They should cover the breadth of the book. For instance, there should be one question from content in approximately the first 25% of the book, another question for the next 25%, and so on.
  - Please include 1 or 2 throwaway answers (i.e. clearly wrong answers) for each question.
- Ideal quizzes would vary in the content they cover (i.e. 1 question for each of the subjects: main characters, plot, significant events, setting, etc).
- We don't require you to read the entire book to create a quiz, but we do suggest reading at least 5 or 6 chapters.
- Most of all, quizzes should be fun so have fun creating them and feel free to get a little creative!
